WHO&ESGAP course:

How to improve antibiotic use in my hospital: a practical introduction to antibiotic stewardship

Venue: Hotel TCC Grand Plaza, Skopje

Date: January 25-26, 2017

Document No: 01

Version: December 28, 2016

Invitation

Antibiotic resistance is one of the biggest threats to global health today. It is rising to dangerously high levels in all parts of the world, compromising our ability to treat infectious diseases and undermining many advances in health and medicine. It can affect anyone, of any age, in any country. Recognizing the importance of this issue as well as the long-term benefits of a well-informed health policy making, we are pleased to invite you to join WHO&ESGAP two-day course aiming practical introduction to antibiotic stewardship.

The course will be held January 25-26, 2017 Hotel TCC Grand Plaza, Skopje.

The course is accredited with 4 CME points.

The purpose of the event is understanding the problems of antimicrobial resistance across global, national and local levels, to understand and be able to describe the core elements of antimicrobial stewardship in hospitals as well as raising awareness of the main barriers to the development of Antimicrobial Stewardship (AS) programme in the hospitals, to train the trainers for development of AS programme in hospitals settings and to be able to apply improvement strategies to address the same.

Please confirm your participation by e-mail to info@studiorum.org.mk by January 10, 2017.

The working documents including the workshop program, agenda, purpose and scope, list of participants and list of documents that will assist the preparation for active participation will be provided following your registration. Please consider that travel costs are not covered by the organizers.
